

ABSTRACT

5

10

A method for providing telecommunications users access This is achieved by providing to information networks. access information for at least one service provider to a service application. Thereafter, the service application information information when retrieves the access the service provider. The service requested from application formats a request with the access information and transmits the request to the service provider. service provider's response is presented to the user. Ву the use of this invention, the user can request information from a service provider from one or more devices without reentering the access information.